EWF Wrestling Manager

What to work on next week

A short plan built from the design review of the new desk concepts and the open work queue.

17 October 2026 | Version 0.85 | Branch: claude/awesome-lovelace-qb0f2j

The short version

Start the week with two cheap steps: Ryan picks the new desk look, and the two broken tests get fixed. Everything else builds on those.

Done
Add-ons run Phases 0 to 2, and item 12 (buildings and trouble in the building). All committed and pushed.

Not done
Nothing published to the live page (the add-ons brief said not to). Phase 3 items 14, 13 and 11, all of Phase 4, and the finish steps.

The plan, in order

1 Ryan picks the desk look — Must — about an hour

Choose Redesign 1 (Sharper desk, closest to today) or Redesign 2 (Marquee night, pops the most). Confirm the screen-size approach below. Nothing visual gets built until this is decided.

2 Fix the two broken tests — Must — small

- test-cancel: a strong run of house shows no longer brings a network offer.
- test-events: no tournament winner is promised the flagship's title match.

Both were broken before the venues change. Bugs left now get harder to trace later.

3 Finish Phase 3 of the add-ons run — Should — the bulk of the week

- Co-promoted supercards (14): a joint show with a rival. Split the money, agree the finishes, argue over talent, and carry the fallout into deals and invasions.
- A full academy (13): grow the development system into a real school.
- Dynasties (11): families and legacies across generations.

4 Build the chosen desk redesign Should

Set one type scale and one button style in the window kit first, then rebuild the desk. Add words or shapes next to every colour signal. Check it at 1280×720, on a tablet and on a TV.

5 Phase 4, if time allows Could

Dot-matrix match viewer first (item 7), the biggest visual payoff. Then sound made by code (20), file-based leagues (8) and playing as a wrestler (10).

6 Older loose ends Could

- Parody world: Suggest a card sometimes cannot fill a show.
- Balance: on suggested cards the giant still gets fired on 2 of 3 test seeds; two company models go broke on one seed each.

Design review of the desk concepts

Five design lenses applied to the three redesigns. The two research skills were skipped: they need playtest notes or survey results, and there are none yet.

Lens	What it found	What to do
Critique	Redesign 2 has the clearest focus: the show first, what needs you second. Redesign 1 is safest. Redesign 3 makes the road feel big but squeezes your tasks.	Pick 2 for pop, or 1 to stay close to today.
Accessibility	Text size and contrast are fine at the bigger sizes. Colour alone carries meaning: green, yellow and red cities; red "needs you".	Add a word or shape to every colour: "Strong", "Cold", ■, ▲.
Design system	The concepts drift from the kit: white text on some buttons, black on others; shadows differ; sizes picked by eye.	Fix one type scale and one button style in the kit before building.
Wording	Most buttons say what they do. "Next (1)" and "Show: Market ▾" are vague.	"Next matter (1)", "Map shows: market".
Build spec	Making 1080p the minimum breaks the 1280×720 rule, tablets, TVs and the tests.	Design at 1080p; let the existing type-size setting scale it down; keep the 720 check.

The three desk redesigns

Concept	What it is	Best for
1. Sharper desk	Today's layout, cleaner: bigger text, more room, a big tickets number and a thick sold bar.	Least risk

2. Marquee night	The next show as a full-width sign in lights, with a glowing tickets counter. Three calm windows below.	Most pop
3. Control room	The road map fills the screen, cities lit by market. Show details in a side column.	Making touring feel big

All concepts are on the canvas: claude.ai/artifact/9vtkC1f1mzGnv866j99xbc. The maps in them are rough placeholders; the game's real dot map would stay.

Decisions for Ryan

- Which desk look: Redesign 1 or 2?
- Design at 1080p but keep 1280×720 working: yes or no?
- Publish the add-ons work to the live page now, or wait until the run is finished?